

EMPAC

Black Body Amnesia is a performance project by author, performance artist, educator, and curator Jaamil Olawale Kosoko. The project accompanies Kosoko's forthcoming Black Body Amnesia: Poems and Other Speech Acts (Wendy Subway, 2022), which blends poetry, memoir, conversation, and performance theory to enliven a personal archive of visual and verbal offerings. Inspired by Audre Lorde's concept of biomythography, Kosoko's archive refracts the shapeshifting, illegible, and fugitive realities of Black diasporan people within the American context to tell a complex narrative rooted within a queer, Black, self-defined, and feminist imagination.

Now, Kosoko brings their work to the stage for a live performance melding vocalization, music, spoken word, movement, moving-image, sculpture, and fabric. Black Body Amnesia is performed by Kosoko with an alternating cast of musicians, DJ's, and vocalists including Raymond Pinto, DJ Maij, and sound designer/composer Everett Saunders. For the work, Kosoko uses complexity theory—which they define as the study of adaptive survivalist strategies inside complex networks or environments—as a choreographic device. From this artistic vantage point, the artist explores how minoritarianized communities record and affirm their existence through collaborative actions and protests, and how they then archive these personal freedom narratives to subvert culturally charged fields of systemic oppression, loss, and erasure.

The performance of Black Body Amnesia follows Kosoko's remote day long April 22, 2020 EMPAC presentation titled Chameleon (The Living Installments), which re-purposed the online social platform Discord as an interactive venue where the artist hosted audio streaming of original sound, footage from a new moving-image work, a multi-media zine, remote conversations, a somatic workshop, and an archive of images, videos, and links. Many of the theories and documents from this event will find themselves in Black Body Amnesia, now staged in person for deeper theatrical exploration.

Kosoko and their team was in-residence at EMPAC to develop and rehearse Black Body Amnesia in advance of their performance. The residency supported lighting design and set design, and included a film shoot. The performance of the work was open to Rensselaer faculty, staff, and students; and was staged for a dynamic film shoot that will be streamed at a later date.

EVERETT SAUNDERS Sound Artist
A Sonic Artist who's composed on Bessie award-winning projects, National Dance Project grant winner, Everett Saunders, with numerous scores for theater and film is among one of the newest and most sought-after talents in the industry. A real soundophile, his approach to film and theater is not only supported by his musicality, but also his understanding of the distinct nuances of film and theater.

With an uncanny knack for entering the minds and creative processes of directors, choreographers, and producers, Saunders' work enhances any project he's involved in. Working with directorial minds from Ron Howard's Project Imagination and internationally renowned dance companies such as Urban Bush Woman, Marjani Forté & Works, and various others, his unique understanding of musical dramaturgy and theatrical score development has impacted audiences across the nation.

Alongside his studio works, Saunders's music industry experiences have landed him the ability to work with acts such as DJ Cassidy's "Paradise Royale" and engaged his skillset for records involving John Legend, Mary J. Blige, Usher, Earth Wind & Fire, Kelly Roland, and various others. These projects have gratefully charted here in the U.S. and abroad. As a sonic artist and dedicated audiophile Saunders was also awarded the New Music USA grant to research composition and application of 3-D Audio for performance that has been presented in various museum installations. Everett Saunders continues his journey through the art of sound and continues to search for learning experiences and inspiration to better his sound, ear, and craft.

RAYMOND PINTO Performer and DJ

Raymond Pinto was born in Bridgeport, Connecticut. He studied dance and graduated from the Juilliard School in 2013. He was awarded a Princess Grace Foundation Award in 2012 for his achievement as a dancer and was a Young Arts Award winner in 2009. He has worked with internationally touring dance companies such as Les Grandes Ballet Canadien de Montreal, Cedar Lake Contemporary Ballet, The Royal Ballet of Flanders, The Phantom of the Opera on Broadway, and the Ballet Nacional de Marseille. Throughout his career as a professional dancer, he has been grateful to work with and perform the works of notable choreographers and artist alike. As an artist himself, Raymond has presented his own works at festivals, theaters, galleries, workshops, and conferences both locally and globally. He has presented his work at the Judson Memorial Church, MoMA PS1, and the Venice Biennale. In addition to creating new performance art works, Raymond also holds a Master's Degree with a focus in Performance Studies from New York University. Despite the precious conditions of today's world, Raymond intends to continue to create new works that situate the African and Latinx diasporas as a contextual point of departure.

MAIJ Cellist and Tarot Reader

Brian Aladesuyi a.k.a. Maij, 32, was born in Atlanta, GA in 1990. He began playing classical cello at age 10 and studied music at Indiana University Bloomington under the tutelage of the famed Sharon Robinson.
